

RELIFE REGENERATIVE

Sexual Wellness

Confidential, physician-supervised care centered on the factors affecting your health and goals.

Sexual health concerns can affect both men and women and may involve hormonal, vascular, neurological, medication-related, or psychological factors. ReLife begins with a confidential evaluation to understand possible contributors before discussing personalized care.

Why people ask about it

ReLife's program may be appropriate for adults experiencing:

- erectile dysfunction
- low libido
- arousal difficulties
- other sexual health concerns

A formal evaluation is required. The program is available to both men and women and is tailored to the individual.

What a ReLife consultation covers

A clinician reviews your concerns, goals, health history, medications, and relevant contributing factors. The evaluation may consider:

- hormonal balance
- vascular health
- neurological function
- other medical or psychological contributors

Specific options, monitoring, timing, and cost are discussed after evaluation.

What to know about evidence and safety

There is no one-size-fits-all approach. Sexual function can be influenced by several interacting factors, so the right plan depends on the underlying cause and your medical history.

ReLife states that options may include hormone optimization, platelet-rich plasma (PRP), peptides, or other interventions under physician supervision. Each option has its own evidence, limitations, possible side effects, and contraindications. Your clinician should explain which options are appropriate, what results are realistic, and what monitoring is needed. Outcomes vary and cannot be guaranteed.
